On a little boy nam'd Whim.

Let others sing the living Great
- & sing the little dead;
Let others reason about elate,
& those by instinct led.

Penelope remember'd not
Her Lord when he return'd
And good Telemachus forgot
The father whom he mourn'd.

Sagacious Argus at the gate
This long lost Lord espied, Look'd up, 'twas all he wish'd of fate
Then laid him down & died.

Georgy gay engaging air,
Society in youth
Of courage to protect the fair,
Of faithful love & truth

Are priz'd; if who loves us deserve
That we should mourn for him,
In justice we should then preserve
The memory of Whim.

Q

Here lies the Mutton-eating King,
Whose word no man relies on,
Who never said a foolish thing,
And never did a wise one.

Hier liegt der Fürst, auf dessen Wort
Kein Mensch sich trauen kann,
Der nie was dummes hat gesagt;
Nie Kluges hat gethan.
